Plans of the pier and basement for the new Biological Sciences building, which is expected to cost approximately $250,000, will be sent today to the WPA office in Louisville for approval, officials of the College of Engineering announced yesterday afternoon.

Rushing completion of plans and construction of this building, the officials are forwarding these plans to Louisville and hope to get them back within a week, when advertisement for bids will be made, while the drawing of the plans for the upper stories of the building are being finished by the College of Engineering. Bids for the construction of the upper stories will be advertised, while construction of the basement and piers is going ahead.

The building will be located just south of Kastle and McVey halls, with the center of the structure fronting the axis of the walkway which runs between McVey and Kastle halls.

A seven-story high tower will be directly opposite the steps and walkway. The west wing of the Biological Sciences building, the name of which has been officially designated as such, will be five stories high, thus taking advantage of the slope of the terrain at that point. The east wing of the building will be four stories high.

Departments which will be housed in the new building will be the bacteriology, home economics, zoology, anatomy, and physiology. Approximately 90,000 square feet of floor space will be contained in the building, according to rough estimates.

The roadway connecting Rose street and Kastle and McVey halls will be made into a double lane bisected by a row of trees.

Famous Journalist,
Book Commentator,
Will Lecture Here

May Lamberton Becker, famous journalist, author, and commentator for "Books," the New York Herald Tribune's Sunday magazine, will come to the University April 8 and 10 for a series of addresses sponsored by the University department of library science. Mildred Semmons, head of the department, announced yesterday.

Mrs. Becker's first appearance will be Thursday, April 8, at 3 p.m. in the browsing room of the library. This meeting will be open to students, faculty, and friends of the University. Thursday night Mrs. Becker will talk at a community dinner sponsored by the University Woman's club, to which the public is also invited.

On Friday evening she will speak on Scandinavian literature to a joint meeting of the American Association of University Women, Chi Delta Phi, women's literary honorary, and Theta Sigma Phi, honorary women's journalistic fraternity, to be held in Boyd hall. Her last talk will be made before the Woman's Club of Central Kentucky, Saturday afternoon at the Lafayette hotel. While on the campus, Mrs. Becker will be the house guest of President and Mrs. Frank L. McVey.

Mrs. Becker has become famous for her answers to inquiries from thousands of readers who have come to look on her as a book oracle through her weekly column, "Readers' Guide." It is estimated that she answered 15,688 questions on books alone last year. She has also gained prominence for her books, which include such works as "Adventures in Reading," "Books As Windows," and "First Adventures in Reading."

Included in the musical score of "Maytime," which was written by Don Cossack, will be "Will You Remember?" "Virginia Ham and Eggs," and many other great songs and operatic arias.

The stars, who rose to prominence through their magnificent roles in "Naughty Marietta," are ably supported in "Maytime" by John Barrymore, Herman Bing, and Tom Brown.

J. D. Ensminger, manager of the Kentucky, in announcing the program, again stressed the necessity for students to obtain their tickets before 8 o'clock, because the show will begin promptly at that time.

Mrs. Gregg, who, before her marriage, was Mary Hansen Peterson, of Cynthiana, was graduated from the University with a B. S. in Agriculture in 1924.

As the Phi Upsilon Omicron, honorary home economics fraternity, has held the pledging for this semester, the initiates will be presented by Neil Shearer, president. April 26

Election of officers of the Association of Women Students will be conducted between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. Thursday, April 8, in the Administration building. During the noon hour, the election will also be conducted on the bridge between Patterson and Boyd halls.

In accord with a decision of the A. W. S. council, names of candidates for all offices will not be announced until the day of elections. This change in the usual procedure was made in order to exclude political bargaining.

Under the new arrangement, two candidates will be selected by a nominating committee composed of the dean of women, the president of the Association of Women Students, and one council member whose appointment has been approved by the A. W. C. council.

Any girl is eligible for A. W. S. presidency provided she has completed five semesters of college work, three in the University of Kentucky. The vice-president must have completed three semesters, two at the University; and the secretary, treasurer, and town representative must have completed two semesters at the University.

At the regular meeting of the A. W. S. council Wednesday afternoon, a committee composed of Mamie Hart, Jerry Smith, Jessie Roby, and Suzanne Snyder was appointed to revise the A. W. S. rule book. Mary Wilder was also appointed as chairman of a committee of faculty women and students to select the outstanding junior women who will receive scholarships awarded annually by the Association of Women Students.

Nominations for offices to be elected by the general membership of the Y. M. C. A. have been announced by Bart N. Peak, "Y" secretary. A definite date for the election has not been set.

Nominations for president include Tom Spragins, Lebanon; Campbell Miller, Lexington, and Robert Evans, Lexington. Nominations for vice-president are not necessary as the candidate receiving the second largest number of votes automatically assumes this office.

Candidates for secretary are Lloyd Mahan, Lexington, and David Salyers, Lexington. Those nominated for treasurer include David Scott, Kent, Ohio, and David Lewis, Middletown, Ohio. Three members of the advisory board are to be elected. Those nominated are A. L. Atchison, Leroy Miles, and Professor M. C. Potter.

Four members of the student advisory board are to be elected and the following students have been nominated for this board: Thomas Bryant, Free Hunter, Robert Evans, Robert States, Clayton Young, Campbell Miller, Tom Spragins, and Robert Connor.

Tomorrow's program will include talks by Dr. Chi Che Wang, of Cincinnati; Miss Inez Wilson, Chicago; Miss Troutt, and Prof. Walter A. Price, head of the department of entomology of the College of Agriculture. Mrs. Iva Alexander, of Louisville City Hospital, will present at the sessions.

During the afternoon a Bluegrass tour will be conducted followed by a tea at 4 o'clock at the Good Samaritan Hospital.

Junior Prom Bids
Will Be Available
Today, Tomorrow

Bids for the Junior Prom will be distributed in the postoffice today and tomorrow only, members of the Prom committee announced yesterday.

A fee of ten cents will be charged for each bid due to the limited budget provided for the dance. Bids will be given to seniors and juniors only, each senior receiving one bid and junior receiving one bid and one stag bid. Each student must present his or her student book when applying for the bid.

The committee requested those juniors who need only one bid to take only one due to the scarcity of bids.

Plans for breaking of ground ceremonies for the $230,000 Student Union building are rapidly being formulated, members of Omicron Delta Kappa's committee for the affair said late yesterday. Acting Governor Keen Johnson, who also is president of the University Alumni association, will be the main speaker, it was stated.

Although a definite date has not yet been set, it is believed the ceremonies will take place at 3 p. m. either Tuesday or Wednesday. The Governor was not in Frankfort yesterday, but in a previous telephone call with the committee, he had consented to speak before the convocation, they declared.

Other details have already been completed and only a definite date and hour has yet to be ascertained. As soon as Mr. Johnson returns to Frankfort, this will be settled, the committee said.

Band Will Play

Other details, however, have already been completed. The University band, under the direction of Mr. John Lewis, and in full uniform, will be on hand for the affair. John McKenney, president of Omicron Delta Kappa, will be introduced by Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University, and in turn will present other student speakers.

Representing the student body, besides McKenney, will be Virginia Robinson, president of the Association of Women Students, who also will speak in behalf of Mortar Board, and Richard Butler, president of the senior class, who will perform the ground breaking ceremony.

The campus leaders' committee also reported they would invite Judge Richard C. Stoll, Lexington, chairman of the board of trustees, to appear at the ceremonies.

The four corners of the building will be marked and a platform for the speakers will be built just off the actual site.

President McVey appointed ODK to handle the affair because it was instrumental in bringing the possibility of such a structure about, it was thought.

Members of the committee are James Shropshire, Ernest Shove, and George Spencer.

STUDENT RIGHTS MAINTAINWHAT WILL BE THE STORY IN SEPTEMBER?

One of the most disheartening aspects in the collegiate scene is the prospect that, with the reduction of the Works Progress Administration rolls, there will be a consequent and proportional cut in N. Y. A. scholarships.

Roughly, about 700 University students on the campus are recipients of these scholarships. Estimating conservatively, 500 of these would find it impossible to remain in college in case this support failed. In all, there are some 850,000 youths the nation over who are listed on N. Y. A. rolls, and, correspondingly, it may be said that about five-sevenths, or some 600,000 students, would be forced to discontinue their schooling.

It seems to be a little known fact that persons on relief rolls are generally superior scholastically to their more fortunate fellow students; in many cases, the level of scholarship plays a large part in obtaining one of the jobs. Now, anyone who has been connected for any length of time with school administration realizes that, due to the depression, the general level of collegiate intelligence has dropped because many worthy but poor students found it impossible to come to college. The N. Y. A. has been a great factor, probably the only one, in helping to remedy this situation.

The youth of this country is clamoring for Congress to pass their American Youth act, and such being the case, it is doubly disheartening to foresee the day when student relief rolls will be entirely cut off the nation's ledger books.

Of course, students will not feel the effect of this until September, when, if N. Y. A. funds fail to be reallocated, student relief will become a thing of the past. Interested persons have a single recourse left: They may get in touch with their Washington representative, for into his hands the problem later will fall, and if a strong and articulate constituency desires the continuance of the N. Y. A., the effect may be a happy one for those in sympathy with higher education.

AND NOW — NAZI REGIMENTATION

The ancient cry of any people against a dictator, "Let us be individual, not each like the other; let us think for ourselves!" has again been thwarted. March 27 Nazi authorities took over the entire control of German farm life.

This was done according to the decree of Col.-Gen. Hermann Goring, commander-in-chief of the four-year plan to make the country self-sufficient. It was explained tersely in half a dozen paragraphs how land and farms must be managed in order to make German independence a certainty and to increase the food supply. Persons owning land are automatically obliged to cultivate it. In the event that the expected cultivation is not gained, district leaders are at liberty to demand that rural land owners comply with orders given them. Failure to obey such orders may result in the appointment of controllers for the farms in question. Those who refuse to comply with the provisions of the four-year plan must lease part or all of their property to an "approved expert," according to the powers placed in district leaders.

Operation of this law will be continued until March 31, 1941. Four days before the official regimentation, Goring said in a speech: "Farmers must produce more if the reich is to live," an apparent forecast of his action.

We reiterate the statement: "Goring is to be observed closely; he would be an admirable successor to Hitler's demagogic powers."

CUTTIN' UP THE CAMPUS
with THEO NADELSTEIN

CAMPUSNICKERS:

"He used Easter as a swell excuse to get soused and pixilated all the time he was away from school." (And now that he's back in school, he's using his classes as a swell excuse to do the same thing!)

"I had a fine time during Easter vacation. I read all of my back lessons, finished a paper, wrote letters to all the people, I owed them to, and started my term report." (Yeah—only why call it an Easter vacation?)

"Someday, smart boy, you're going to find yourself smacked in the eye—but smacked!" (The thought in every coed's mind when the supercilious male cuts in on her at a dance, with that oh-so-bored expression.)

"He begged and begged her to give him a kiss, and when she finally said yes, he just laughed and yelled 'April Fool!'" (And now she's probably laughing and yelling in a straight-jacket at Eastern State Hospital, and who can blame her?)

"Hello, how's your love-life?" (Ain't nothing sacred, anymore?)

DON'T LOOK NOW, BUT—you're wasting your time dirty-nosing that guy...he's only the lab assistant, not the one who gives the grades!

THINGS WE COULD DO WITHOUT:

1. Gals who insist on conventional behavior always.
2. The fast approach of commencement.
3. That overwhelming yen to get-away-from-it-all.

4. Stoogents who gasp, "Did she ever fall for me!"

5. Sophomoric upperclassmen who martyr themselves on the altar of extra-curricular activities.

6. Having to think up alibis for a bruised face.

CAMPUSIGHTS:

Early indications of spring...love-bug bitten couples sitting on steps, on benches, on auto running boards, on the grass, on rock walls...coeds brushing moth balls out of white shoes, organdies, white gloves...seniors bull sessioning about what they'll be doing five years from now...animal spirits revealed in the antics on the campus of the freshman class...open windows in classrooms, with professors going frantic trying to keep stoogents' eyes inside the room...early indications of spring.

Seemingly So...

By ODIS LEE HARRIS

This column some time ago suggested that every one in the United States be promoted to a full generalship so that there would be no more war, reasoning that as everyone would have the right to give orders and not to obey them, there could be no mass discipline, and since there could be no mass discipline there could be no war.

Unfortunately, our sane and sage advice has not been heeded, and to our knowledge there has not been one single promotion. But at least we have tried in our humble way to promote peace. We even have a shell on our table that came from the Pacific Ocean. Yes, we have tried, but in vain.

A friend of ours, through compassion for us for a fight that failed—we had two friends along this line, the other one hasn't been back since we bought the insurance policy from him—said that since we had fallen so gallantly in our fight for world peace, we should revive ourself and do the next best thing for posterity.

So we revived, took up our cross and are now about to start campaigning for our friend's "mental infant." The campaign is to be world-wide in its scope, but must necessarily be started on a small scale.

The opening campaign is expected to start in some two or three states, namely the states of expectation, admiration, and we hope with the good support of some financial state.

Letters begging the cooperation of everyone in this world-wide movement are being sent out. The idea is so basically simple that it will be startlingly clear even to the greatest of minds. Before the next world war starts we hope to have photographed every possible man, animal, plant and thing that will be of interest to civilization in the years to come. Thus after the next war is over and the face of the earth has become one great mass of debris and man is no more, a perfect record of the past will be available.

Support of this movement has been gaining momentum at a tremendous clip. Among its supporters are the hundreds of camera clubs throughout the world, the Eastman Kodak Company and the lens grinders of Germany. Both Hitler and Mussolini were won to the idea after a second's exposure. Russia and Japan were much quicker to see the light, being stopped in an active protest at 1-200 of a second.

Above is the situation in a nut shell—the use of the preposition "from" is strictly forbidden. We urge everyone to join in this great movement.

The next world war can't be long off. We must work hard both day and night so that we may finish our work before the war finishes us. For who knows that maybe some day the ants or bees may become conscious of their own existence, look with amazement and wonder at the photographic record of the prehistoric animal—MAN.

By RALPH E. JOHNSON

WHAT A STRANGE contradiction, what an odd relationship exists between the sexes. Greater strife it contains than wars, yet greater happiness than all other achievement comes of that struggle which is as inevitable as death.

History—literary and biblical—has recorded the matches. Literary men have prophesied the emancipation of this frail sex, have declared her free of her burden and it has come to pass.

Here is a mass of billions of people equally divided. Here is an ever present (it started with time and shall end with it) battle being waged as to who shall rule the roost.

Earliest literature indicates this condition. The Bible finds cause to treat of the problem no end. Few good words can be found in the Old Testament for this sinister sex. Shell that has inhibited them they burst forth brazenly.

They grow wise in these ways because of that early warning. But man goes after his love from a desire natural and unsullied by a pampering civilization. For being natural he is termed the beast.

But the triumph of women is short-lived both in their life and in the life of society. Apparently they march on and up, but it has been said that it is a long path that has no turning.

Picture them on a race track. Let us say that for centuries they strained at the barrier, but Isben sprang it for them. Away they went, slowly at first, for years of "fainting spells" had done them no good. Long skirts, bustles, corsets, long hair held them back, so one by one they discarded them in their haste to catch up with the men.

But cigarettes, athletics, learning and stilted passion are strangling them, squeezing out their emotions. See how short-lived is the glory of these conquering women. Like roses they bloom. In younger couples the girl is radiant, the center of attraction. Ten years later she is already faded, but the man, if he is still beside her, has increased his stature and now attracts the attention.

What triumph was woman's? the number of members in that lodge....After encircling the room he finally reached Marjorie Andrews who, in a clear and ringing voice, answered with the correct digits....It's a fine romance that has been overlooked here....

The news comes through that Reggie Childs and Lee Bennett (of Jan Garber fame) are playing for the ATO and Chio dances, respectively....Also that Hal Goodman is the director at the engineer's dance tomorrow night....

Now that the school year is nearing its close, the time has come when we are in need of a new and aspiring scandal columnist....from now until school is out every Friday will be given over to the candidates....Anyone feeling the itch to tell all on the fond frat brother or sorority sister, please get in touch with this writer right away at the Phidelt house....And it's quite educational in a way, for you end up by knowing about 50 per cent more people than you would have under ordinary circumstances....so get out the old quill and get to work.

Mac Hughes of "sports" renown is lurking around with candid camera these fine days getting some excellent pictures, so he says....One being that of Paul "Golden Glove" Durbin and Martha Moore....Martha acquiesced but we understand the girl that preceded her would have none of it.

Clarence McCarroll is now living under a new moniker, being Clarry "Rodent Diplomat" McCarroll. Do they mean cheesy?

We are presenting the following joke with no alibis. Niel Plummer having told it in one of his classes: "There was a train leaving Frankfort on a single track bound for Lexington, and was engineered by a Norwegian. In Lexington, at the same time on the same single track, there was a train leaving for Frankfort. To make a long story short, both reached their destination at the same time, and although both were traveling on the same track, no mishap occurred....How was this accomplished? (Now comes the joke:) There is an old saying 'Norg is Norg, and souse is souse, and never the train shall meet.' Phewwww."

Doctor Sherwood
Studies Ratology
To Help Humans

Even if a thousand white rats are sacrificed and one human being's life saved, our research would be justified," says Dr. T. C. Sherwood, of the department of anatomy and physiology, of the University.

In a small, insignificant-looking University building, commonly known as "the animal house," located at 119 Graham avenue, Dr. Sherwood and his helpers have been experimenting with 200 to 400 white rats annually in the effort to increase the available knowledge in the treatment of human beings.

For in many ways rats are similar to human beings. Like men, they are gregarious creatures. When a white rat is taken away from his fellows, he ceases to enjoy life, grows inactive and despondent. Too, the rat's diet is approximately the same as man's, and he suffers from a great many of the same diseases.

The department of physiology of the University is gaining wide recognition from the published results of the varied experiments with white rats. Many foreign countries have written to the department requesting reprints of experimental findings.

There are three major experiments being conducted on rats in the research laboratory at the present time. They are:

1. Experiments in nutrition, which include study of vitamins and their effects on body chemistry.

2. Experiments with hormones, "our chemical masters," which probably affect personality and are definitely known to affect the general well-being of a person.

3. Basal metabolism tests, which means in simple language, the rate of energy consumption of the body.

Doctors in hospitals all over the country write for information concerning the results of these above mentioned experiments and use the information for the treatment of sick children in their hospitals.

Seeing Sport Stuff

By TOM WATKINS

THE 1937 EDITION of the Wildcat tennis team will travel to the great out-of-doors for the first time of the season Thursday, to take their initial drubbing from the elements. A fairly large squad presents a fairly good prospect for the season, although the loss of outstanding players of last year should bring a frown of disappointment to the pleasant face of Coach Downing.

Trips to the far-flung places of Atlanta and Detroit should prove pleasant to the 'Cat netters, and it is to be hoped that they will have the same success on these journeys that was enjoyed by the team of last year. Returning lettermen are led by Captain Dave® Randall, who is without his brother, Chuck, one of last year's outstanding men.

The star of the team, and probable No. 1 man, is Lexington's own Bobby Evans, winner of many titles for the past few years. These two will be supported by Francis Montgomery, a modest young engineer from Pineville.

Two brilliant and colorful characters will be among the missing when the roll of the 1937 Wildcat tennis team is called. Elvis Stahr and Jim Al Moore, the co-captains of 1936, were lost to Coach Downing and his cohorts by the process of graduation.

Stahr, a leading spirit of the campus during his senior year here, is at present attending Oxford University in England as a winner of a Rhodes Scholarship. He was not a drawback to the eligibility list of the net team, which was especially noted last year for the high scholastic standings of its members.

Moore, the other half of the famous duet and doubles team of four years' standing, was also a campus leader and holder of a high scholastic standing. His presence is lent this year to the stately halls of Harvard University, where he is pursuing his study of law. He was an outstanding singles player, as well as an able partner to Stahr in doubles matches.

For four years this extraordinary partnership and close personal friendship was a noted feature of the Wildcat tennis team, and it is certain that Moore and Stahr will be sorely missed by this year's net-men.

Stahr and Moore contributed greatly to the average standing of last year's team, and it was largely because of this good scholastic standing that the erstwhile scandalmonger, George Kerler, pinned upon the team the sobriquet, "Kentucky's Brain Trust." This name stuck to a team that surpassed its coach's and supporters' expectations by such a large margin, and yet managed to maintain such a high scholastic standing. This year's team has some large shoes to fill, and a magnificent reputation to live up to.

Members of the squad to be as yet reduced to a suitable number have good reputations themselves. Oscar Wisner, the fraternity champion, will be in there to give his all for the glory of the team, and Ace Miller, Phil Engelhardt, George Jackson, Walter Botts, and Ed Randall are known as quite proficient in the grand old game.

One of the most feared tennis men of all Kentucky may report for the squad. Warfield Donohue, veteran netman and Falls City champion, has not, to the knowledge of this columnist, reported for duty, but if he does so, Kentucky's foes had better watch out. Donohue, an excellent basketballer, is one of the best tennis men in the entire state and his addition to the squad would strengthen the team immeasurably.

The International Printers' Union annual golf tournament will be held in Baltimore August 8 to 12.

One hundred and three horses have been nominated for this year's Kentucky Derby to be run on the afternoon of May 9.

The New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals are favored in the 1937 pennant race, according to a poll of baseball writers. This poll was conducted by the Sporting News, a baseball paper published in St. Louis.

Margaret Sullavan says Luckies are the answer for her throat

"I am not sure which is more critical—a Broadway audience or the movie microphones. At any rate, whether in Hollywood or New York, an actress has to be certain that her performances are always up to the peak. And that means being careful of the voice and throat. That's why, though I enjoy smoking thoroughly, I try to use judgment in the cigarette I choose. When I first began smoking, Luckies were my choice, because I found this light smoke advisable for my throat. And that's as true today as ever. Luckies are still my standby."

Student

To the Editor of The Kernel: I believe in your idea that "Springtime Is Clean-Up Time," especially for school politics, as next year's elections depend upon the stand that we take now.

I understand that dirty politics have played a role in former elections. This is very unfortunate and such practices should not be tolerated. However, in this year's election of the freshman and sophomore class officers, there has been a swing to the other extreme. It is unfair to the members of these classes to have their officers appointed by a council which does not even entirely represent the student body. This form of selection is just as unfair as a corrupt election. I sincerely disapprove of the present method of electing, and feel that my and my fellow officers' appointments are unfair to the students whom we are supposed to represent. It is not because I don't appreciate the consideration that the Men's Council has shown by conferring upon us the honor of class officership, that I write this, but because I feel that it is an honor which only the voice of the majority has the right to bestow. It is upon student opinion that rest the actions of our superiors in this matter, so our attitudes must speak our will.

May it be that the sophomore officers of the class of 40, are true representatives of the students.

JULIAN L. SMITH,
Sec.-Treas., freshman class.

Museum Replica
Of "Old Faithful"
Now On Display

By OPAL HOBBES

Why go to Yellowstone National Park to see Old Faithful geyser show off when you can merely visit the Geology Museum on the University campus where you will see practically the same thing but on a smaller basis?

This unique model, which is constructed of tin, was built in 1928 by Dr. A. C. McFarlan, head of the Geology department at the University. Since that time it has been very active.

The secret of the underlying principle of this invention is the same as that which causes a natural geyser to explode. There is a tin column, four feet in height, filled with water. When heat, by means of a blow torch, is applied at the bottom, the pressure of the steam forces the water at the top to shoot upwards for about 18 inches.

The water is caught in a container and is used over and over again. According to its caretaker, David Young, head of the Geology Museum, soapy water is more efficient for this brainchild.

The toy, and it may be termed as such, was on display at the State Fair in 1934 and 1935. While there many persons saw it in action, several of whom were a little too curious. Stooping over to see just what caused the eruption, these curious persons were just in time to get a mixture of soap and water in their eyes. Mr. Young regretted not being able to furnish towels for the unfortunate persons.

Another story tells of one man who, unaware of the activity of the geyser, was hit on the neck by a drop of boiling water and immediately yelled to the top of his voice, thinking a bee had stung him.

This model geyser is really something different and is well worth seeing. Although Old Faithful shoots to a height of 150 feet every 65 minutes, this little job is not so consistent but it does prove the maxim concerning the cause of geysers.

On Sox and Hats

By MARJORIE RIESER

When the poet wrote, "A rose by any other name would be just as sweet," he was not thinking of this striped sox of the men or the spring hats of the coeds of the campus. Probably you could call them by another name without stretching the truth too far. Sox are sox and hats are hats—but see what our campus leaders call 'em!

"I think if they have to be radical they might as well be radical on their ankles where it doesn't show," says Virginia Robinson, president of the Association of Women Students.

"I really haven't had enough experience to know what I actually think but they are, when chosen properly, quite attractive," Tom Spragens, president of the Y. M. C. A.

"If people would only realize the time and place to wear them," Sara Louise Cundiff, president of Phi Beta, national honorary fraternity in Music and Dramatics.

"I'm only interested in what's under the hat," George Spangler, editor of The Kentucky Kernel.

"As long as they wear them I don't care what they are," Theo Nadelstein, president of Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary fraternity for women in Journalism.

"I haven't noticed them a great

Shop Sights

By BETTY EARLE

To be, the power behind fashion's throne, says, "Dress up and live!" And you know she's right! Just because you purchased a smart Easter costume, don't for goodness sake, think you can sit smugly by while others buy (honest—we don't play on words!) The day after Easter we women always feel like Cinderella after the ball! A trip to town for a bit of new finery will remedy that, m'lady.

Purell's Coed Corner is just the place for you—especially with the Junior Prom coming up! You'll have to start off the spring with a new formal—a crisp organdie, a flowing net, or a smooth silk. Perhaps you'd like the ivory embroidered net as much as we did—self pleating trimmings it about the tiny bolo jacket and low neckline. "Breath of the Avenue" fashions present another of the popular, as well as practical, two-piece frocks. This one is of black silk printed in mustard-colored tulips enlivened by a barred wool cutaway of the same shade. For a sports print, choose the brown dotted chiffon, in dressmaker style, which uses pleats to good advantage—tiny, narrow ones in its full sleeves and wider ones in its blouse. White pique forms the collar and cuffs, while white patent leather goes into a long flat loop to make one of the cleverest of belts. For an inexpensive evening wrap, you couldn't do better at $7.95 than these of bengaline or mantelette—the latter corded as to shoulder and collar. For a real bargain, see the evening dresses at $10 ($19 values). Cape suits in a light summer wool promise to be very good both now and later.

And about shoes...for a walking shoe, there's the high-in-front type, strapped across the instep, medium-heeled...at Brown's Booterie. If you like the less conservative styles, the cut-out, cross-strap, tie-at-the-back kind. London tan kid and beige buck combine for a graceful pump of a more slender heel. If you prefer considering brown and white at an early date, there are an abundance of these. Buckskin and patent leather join each other in many styles. The white buck perforated pump with pointed toe and medium-narrowed heel is very trim. And we just can't resist hats! Meyer & Hinkle's is going in for navies. One is of fine straw brightened by varicolored ribbon "shoe strings" looped in front and sliding down over its wide brim. Another has what we must call a "stepped" crown—that is...well, just what it sounds like! Long stems cross the brim and wander up the "steps" into a cluster of flowers perched precariously on the side. Really, it doesn't look a bit tipsy!
